The Double Initial Murders

by Michael Hoffman

'The Double Initial murders' took the lives of four little girls via rape and strangulation, between 1971 and 1976, in Rochester, NY, which was once known as the 'Mysterious City' [1] and is today the corporate headquarters of Kodak and Xerox. The children's deaths fit a pattern which one psychiatrist called 'laying a trail of esoteric clues to match wits with the police.' [2] One of the 'clues' was the occurrence of double initials in each of the children's names. Another might be the fact that the killings took place in the months of November and April only.

The first victim's name is a common one among Spanish (she was Puerto Rican) and is also a kind of cant language treasure-trove. Her name was Carmen Colon. Carmen can mean enchanted. Colon signifies the anus, among other things. In Fortean Times #30 we looked at the importance in sorcery of the word 'wicker' and of its appearance in the 'Son of Sam' case as one of the names used by the murderer(s). In Fortean Times #32 we noted, en passant, that many of the murders committed by the Hillside Strangler -- who is a native of Rochester -- took place on sites 'sacred' to the Ordo Templi Orientis (OTO), the successor-group to the medieval Knights Templar.

Let's run this OTO angle along with the details of the 'Double Initial' murders through our symbol computer and see what we can come up with.

In Latin, colon has the aforementioned meaning as the small intestine and, alternatively, as the 'dove of love'. The dove is the central symbol of the OTO. [3] Of course, like so many other potent images, the dove is also important to a whole spectrum of groups including 'Churchianity'. But it is the OTO's obsession with sex, sacrifice and ritual which causes us to pursue the dove glyph down blood-sprinkled corridors.

In the famous 'North African working', OTO chief Aleister Crowley was sodomized as part of a rite meant to invoke Choronzon, an entity Elizabethan sorcerer Dr. John Dee described as 'that mighty devil'. Another part of the ritual entailed the sacrifice of three doves and it was from the blood of these feathered colons that Choronzon supposedly materialized. [4]

According to the Cabalah, 'everything lies veiled in numbers'. Choronzon's is given as 333, a multiple of magic 33.

Carmen Colon was abducted on Route 33. Her body was discovered near Churchville (the first letter of that town corresponds to her initials). The second victim, Wanda Walkowicz, was found in the village of Webster. Little Wanda had flaming red hair. In a popular comic book for children, the lead character's name is Wanda the Witch. [5] The third victim, Michelle Maenza, lived on Webster Crescent St. and attended

Rochester School 33. Maenza's corpse was located in the town of Macedon, in Wayne County. [6]

The fourth and last child killed was Michelle McMurray. She varies from the pattern in a couple of ways. First, the site where her body was discovered did not correlate with her initials -- Child St. -- though certainly it fits the 'motley drama' as a whole. Second, her place as fourth victim disrupts a numerological set which had been advanced with precision in all the other deaths. 'C' is the third letter of the alphabet, 'M' is the 13th and 'W' the 23rd. To continue the progression by going through the alphabet again, 'G' is the 33rd letter. There was no 'G' victim. [7]

The police in Rochester attempted to discredit the ceremonial aspects of 'Double Initial'. One headline in a local newspaper typified the mind-set. It read, 'Police Discount Slaying Coincidences'. [8] When Michelle McMurray's body was recovered there was a public outcry demanding the release of the blood type found in the rapists semen, to ascertain whether or not it corresponded to the semen found on the first three children. The Rochester cops refused. [9] In a particularly revealing piece of stupidity, the head of the 'Double Initial' investigation, Michael Iaculli, stated, 'We decided a long time ago the initials had nothing to do with it.' For the past six years Rochester Police have insisted that the killer responsible for the first three deaths committed suicide in 1974, although they refused to name this mystery man.

When Rochester native Kenneth Bianchi was arrested as the monster responsible for the Hillside Strangler murders in California and Washington (state), this writer considered him immediately as a suspect in 'Double Initial'...which was not exactly a Holmes-ian caliber deduction to be sure, but one, unbelievably enough, the Rochester authorities refused to consider. Their Chief of Detectives, Anthony Fantigrossi, maintained for the entire first year of Bianchi's capture and subsequent incarceration, that Bianchi had iron-clad alibis for his whereabouts during the 'Double Initial' murders. [10] The Police Chief in the state of Washington where Bianchi was apprehended never interrogated Bianchi about 'Double Initial' because Rochester Police told the Washington cops firmly that Bianchi was not a suspect. [10]

In this writer's first article in Fortean Time #30, I mentioned the possibility that the Hillside Strangler and the killings in Rochester had possible links to US officialdom. I am still troubled by the fact that 'Son of Sam' hit-man David Berkowitz referred to one of his fellow pseudo-satanist cultists (John Wheat Carr) as a 'child molestor'. [11] One of the 'Son of Sam' cryptic notes was signed 'John Wheaties, Rapist and Suffocator of Young Girls', even though none of the 'Sam' victims were raped or suffocated. Intuition made me wonder if maybe there wasn't some kind of occult network responsible for ritual killings which was somehow mixed-up with the government...not really a heck of a lot of hard evidence, however.

Then, in late 1979, a gutsy former policewoman named Rosemary Leary traced Kenneth Bianchi's High School graduation photograph and compared it with a police composite drawing of the 'Double Initial' murderer. She and many others have noticed the striking resemblance. At nearly the same time, Forensic Serologist Donald G. Gordon blew away the Rochester cops' suicide mystery man explanation. Gordon demonstrated that the suicided individual was a 'secreter' (a person whose blood type shows up in their semen). The sexual fluid found on the Rochester children was that of a non-secreter (blood type does not show in semen). Kenneth Bianchi is a non-secreter.

There is evidence that Rochester Police had their own report about the secreter revelations in January 1979 but as late as October 1979 were still insisting Bianchi didn't do it and that the suicide mystery man was the culprit. [10] Early in 1980 Chief Fantigrossi was confronted with this discrepancy and reportedly 'became angry' at the question. It has also been learned that when Bianchi lived in Rochester, he kept '20 to 30' pornographic pictures of little girls 'cut out like paper dolls' under his bed mattress. [12]

At the time of his arrest, Bianchi was employed as a Captain in the Whatcom Security Agency, a private rent-a-cop company. According to researcher Mae Brussell, 'Son of Sam' trigger-man Berkowitz obtained the infamous 'Bulldog .44' handgun which reigned terror on New York City, from a private security guard in Houston, Texas. In his book "The Private Sector", investigative reporter George O'Toole points out that the private security industry has the strongest possible ties to official police agencies.

Mark Chapman, accused assassin of John Lennon, was a security guard. It should be recalled that Berkowitz was a New York City auxiliary policeman who has sued the US Army for disabilities he incurred while in military service (his homicidal capacity).

John Wheat Carr was a member of the US Air Force. His sister worked for the Yonkers Police Department. His father owned the dog Berkowitz said 'controlled' him. John Wayne Gacy murdered 33 boys in the Chicago area. He was a powerful politician (like former San Francisco Housing Authority Commissioner Jim Jones). He was photographed with the wife of US President Jimmy Carter, and was wearing a US Secret Service badge at the time. Gacy dressed alternately in clown suits and cop uniforms and drove an automobile he had specially outfitted to resemble a police cruiser. [13]

On the day she died, two US Secret Service agents were spotted at the home of Wanda Walkowicz. [14] The fiery Wanda was considered a 'tough' little child who was very leery of strangers. Would she have gotten into a car if a policeman had asked her to? We know Bianchi posed as a policeman in Los Angeles to gain his victim's confidence.

Psychic detective James Shelby Downard believes that we are in the 'Must Be' stage in what he calls 'The Long Journey of the Alchemist'. In this human alchemy, 'all that is hidden must be made manifest'

On one level we can say that this police-criminal interface is merely coincidence or the quite natural masquerade a criminal would adopt in order to more easily obtain his terrible goals. Maybe so. But I'm interested in the ceremonial trappings attending these 'immolations' -- trappings the criminals had to go great lengths to devise, and expose themselves to great risks in order to execute.

I'm interested in the effects of the blurring of distinction between cops 'n' cons when mixed with ancient words of power, archetypes, numerology and geomancy and given wide publicity, on the Dreaming Mind of our Group Mind. I am reminded of Joyce Maynard's comment that 'No villain is more frightening than the one you supposed to be your friend.' Probably the only villain to prove the exception to Maynard's rule is the one who intentionally drops clues as to his real identity in order to achieve a most subtle haute mind control.

In the original script for the film "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" the hypnotist who controlled the murderer was also the head psychiatrist at the insane asylum. Like Oswald, RUBY, Sirhan, James Earl RAY and Arthur Bremer before him, Kenneth Bianchi was a student of hypnotism. In his apartment, police discovered a hypnotism textbook and a pamphlet from the Bellingham Hypnosis Center. [15] Bianchi even posed as a hypnotist in a newspaper advertisement in the LA Times in which he offered 'five answers' for 25 dollars. [15]

Returning through a circle 'to the self-same spot' -- we began this little piece with a Black Magical Order headquartered in California. On Halloween, 1977 a victim of the Hillside Strangler was carefully 'placed' (just as the Double Initials had been) near Devil's Gate Reservoir. [16] It was here that the OTO performed its rituals. [17] The same OTO worshipped a Lovecraftian Choronzon-like llogior believed to reside in the Griffith Park/ Arroyo Seco/ Rosebowl node. Other victims of the Hillside Strangler were left in the Griffith Park and Suicide Bridge areas -- places heavily imbued with sex and death 'vibes' (Griffith Park is one of the main 'gay' make-out assignation-spots).

And there's yet another 'coincidence': the OTO also established a chapter in 1915 on Mount Palomar. Palomar means dove-cote in Spanish and flocks of doves used to congregate on the mountain back then.

Was there some kind of geomantic and ritual significance in the placing of some of the bodies of the Hillside Strangler in places revered by black arts groups? Is it possible that ceremonial murders and the tremendous magical powers they are supposed to conjure are still going on in our modern world of rocket trips, plastic bags and instant coffee?

Well, maybe not, maybe the whole thing is just a bad movie from which we will one day awake. It certainly resembles one. Horror-movie star Peter Lorre's daughter was almost a victim of Bianchi, who flashed a police badge at her and ordered her into his car. She had an appointment with some other destiny, though. [18]

Answers? Perhaps they can be found in the questions buried in movies such as "Chinatown"/ I, for one, have my answers in the lines of that patron, secular-saint of sleuths everywhere:

'And the angels, all pallid and wan,

Uprising, unveiling, affirm
That the play is the tragedy
'Man',
And its hero the conquering
Worm.'

satanist theory I sought to discredit as an exclusive 'solution' in Fortean Times #32. Actually though, it is important to bring some sophistication to this matter of mind control, which is what 'magic' really is after all. Mind control is power and power is what governments and intelligence agencies thrive on. The idea of satanists in government as opposed to satanists being hunted down by government is fairly obvious to me.

Gnosticism, The Old Ones, And Benjamin Creme

Much has been written about Benjamin Creme and his Messiah, Lord Maitreya, over the past couple years. In this article we want to show Creme's connection to ancient Gnostic thought, and to the Black Magic of the Ordo Templi Orientis (OTO).

Creme teaches that the consciousness of Maitreya took over the body of Jesus Christ in a process called "overshadowing." This separation of the body of Christ from the consciousness of Christ is an ancient Gnostic doctrine known as Docetism. It is part of the doctrine of dualism, which is an extension of pantheism.

It was during the days of the Apostle John that the sect of the Gnostics arose. Its immediate inspiration was the Cabala. The Gnostics (from gnos̄is, meaning knowledge) attempted to unite the mystery teachings of Babylon and Egypt with the doctrines of Christianity. Their purpose was to take the simple teachings of Christ and turn them into Cabalistic mumbo-jumbo, thus making them unintelligible to the ordinary people.

The best definition of docetism comes from The Answering Service (Dec. 22, 1980) of the Lord's Covenant Church of Phoenix, Arizona. It states: "This religion (Gnosticism) adopted the dualism of the Greeks (i.e., matter is evil, and spirit is good).

In applying Greek dualism to Christianity, they came up with a doctrine called Docetism. This doctrine stated that the 'Christ image' (spiritual, immortal, and good) inhabited a fleshly body (material, mortal, and evil) called 'Jesus'. In making this distinction between Jesus and the Christ image, they denied that Jesus was the Christ, teaching instead that 'Christ' merely inhabited the body of Jesus. The result was that they denied that Christ died for our sins. Rather, only Jesus BODY died on the cross. Christ Himself did not really die, they said... Thus, these docetic Gnostics undermined the Cross and the basis of justification."

The docetism of Benjamin Creme can be traced from the Gnostics -- and from the Gnostics it can be traced through other revolutionary sects such as the Manicheans and the Cathars. The Manicheans were founded by Cubricus who was born in Babylon around 216 A.D. He later changed his name to Manes. Combining Gnosticism, Zoroastrianism, and Cabalism, Manes developed a Masonic-style secret society which taught reincarnation, dualism, and docetism. According to Manes, all matter is evil. Human beings are therefore of Satanic origin, and Adam & Eve are considered the offspring of demons.

Manes taught that everytime a child is born, more Light and Spirit (Good) is entrapped in Darkness and Flesh (Evil). Thus, as more children are born, more of Spirit (Good) is encased in Flesh (Evil) allowing Evil to gain advantage over Good. Perhaps our modern abortion movement is based on such a belief.

Manes, like the Gnostics and like Benjamin Creme taught the docetic doctrine that since matter is evil, Christ's body was just a phantom. For his followers, he disapproved of marriage as it could lead to procreation and hence the retardation of Light.

His doctrines even spread to Europe. Concerning a Manichean stronghold in France, Montague Summers in "The Geography of Witchcraft" writes: "In 1022, during the reign of Robert the Good, a band of Manichees were discovered at Orleans and sent to the stake for their sorceries. They used to meet on certain nights in a lonely and deserted house, whither they repaired each with a lantern in his hand. There after certain loathsome ceremonies, they chanted a litany invoking Satan and other devils under obscene and abominable names, extinguishing meanwhile the lights they carried, and giving themselves over to the most revolting debaucheries. Sometimes they sacrificed a child, making a paste of the blood and portions of the flesh, which they moulded into wafers to serve in their blasphemous parodies of the Holy Mass."

Dualist Gnostic sects (during Apostolic and post-Apostolic times) such as the Ophites, the Cainites, the Capocrationists and the Marcosians, literally glorified perversion, blasphemy, and total moral anarchy. Some groups ritually imbibed urine and blood. These actions are paralleled by the Cthulhu cultists in the Lovecraftian Mythos where Lovecraft mentions "mad cacaphonous orgies."

In about 1140 A.D., the Cathars appeared in western Europe, having been spawned by Manichean schools long established in France. The Cathars were also known as the Albigensians because their heresy first erupted in the town of Albi. They held the same doctrines as the Manicheans -- reincarnation, dualism, and docetism. They condoned abortion. They also practiced sodomy, cannibalism, and ritual suicide.

Many books present the Albigensians as Christian reformers. Nothing could be further from the truth. They were not at war with only the Catholic Church, but with all civil and religious authority, and with all order. Nesta Webster writes: "It was amongst the nobles of Languedoc (an area thriving with Cabalistic schools -- Editor) that the Albigenses found their principal support. This 'Judea of France' as it has been called, was peopled by a medley of mixed races, Iberian, Gallic, Roman, and Semitic..." She then quotes Jules Michelet as saying: "There were few who in going back did not encounter some Saracen or Jewish grandmother in their genealogy." Webster continues: "The Albigensian movement has been falsely represented as a protest merely against the tyranny of the Church of Rome; in reality it was a rising against the fundamental doctrines of Christianity -- more than this; against all principle of religion and morality. For whilst some of the sect openly declared that the Jewish law was preferable to that of the Christians, to others the God of the Old Testament was as abhorrent as the 'false Christ'... Forerunners of the seventeenth century Libertines and eighteenth-century Illuminati, the Albigensian nobles under the pretext of fighting the priesthood, strove to throw off all the restraints the Church imposed."

In 1209, the Church launched a crusade against the Albigensian-Cathar heretics after the heretics had murdered a Papal Legate. The crusade turned into a bloody war which lasted for 40 years. The Cathars were aided by the Jews and by the Knights Templar. Many Cathars became members of the Templars. The Cathar nobles also urged inter-marriage with the Jews (while the lower members of the sect were warned not to procreate). The Cathar nobles also appointed Jews to important positions in their courts. (See "Jewish Influence on Christian Reform Movements" -1925 - by Louis Israel Newman.)

In his book "Red Fog Over America" William Guy Carr writes: "As far as I can ascertain, the Inquisition was started to stop the Albigensian heresy known as the Catharan Belief, which had as its objective the depopulation of the Christian World. Catharists preached that to indulge in sexual intercourse for the purpose of procreation was serving the purpose of Satan and was therefore a Mortal Sin. Catharism also taught that human beings who were unable to make a useful contribution materially to society should be made to commit suicide or allowed to die of starvation."

The dualist-docetic doctrine is also incorporated within the 18th degree of Freemasonry. According to Albert Pike, Masonry is based on Gnosticism. In the Masonic Lodge, one finds the traditional Masonic emblems -- the Square and Compass -- with a letter 'G' in the center. In the lower degrees the Mason is told that this 'G' stands for God. Later, as he progresses he is told that it stands for Geometry. Finally, he learns the truth -- the 'G' stands for Gnosticism. Benjamin Creme says that the "new religion" will manifest through organizations such as Freemasonry.

Having briefly traced Creme's docetic doctrine from ancient Gnosticism to modern Freemasonry, it is now time to look at another side of Mr. Creme -- a side tied to Black Magic. In his book "The Reappearance of the Christ", Creme talks about a festival to be held during the New Age. He calls it the Wesak Festival, and says it is to be held in a valley in the Himalayas. From past issues the reader will remember this as being the area wherein is located the Primary Gateway -- Shambhala. Creme says that at the festival, all the members of the Hierarchy will gather together. They will stand in triangular formation in front of an enormous flat stone upon which rests a large crystal bowl filled with pure water.

This reference to the Hierarchy is a reference to the Great Old Ones. And according to the OT0, a large bowl of clear glass or crystal must be present for a "primary manifestation of Them." Although the OT0 ritual calls for sea water, the parallel is still close enough. Further, Creme says that the Wesak Festival should be held under the full moon when more energies are available. The OT0 says that this working must be performed at night.

The Hierarchy which appears at the Wesak Festival must be the same as the entities who manifest through the OT0 ritual. In other words, the gods served by Benny Creme are the amorphous entities depicted in the tales of Lovecraft, and known as the Old Ones!!!

Let's tie this up by looking at the connection between Gnosticism and the cult of the Old Ones. The Gnostics believed that matter and the world were fabricated by the Demiurge, the last in a series of emanations called Aions. (See CT #1 for more details.) The Demiurge represents the emanation farthest removed from the divine principle which in the Cabala is known as Ain Soph. In the Cthulhu Mythos this role is held by Azathoth, the blind idiot god.

The word "Aion" is the Greek word for "age". This word underwent transformations whereby it eventually carried the connotation of being a personified entity. Thus, the Aions (ages) are also the Old Ones. It has always been the goal of the Old Ones to be worshipped as impersonal forces which is why the systems of pantheism and dualism were formulated. And indeed these doctrines appear to be rapidly becoming the prevailing world view!

The Gnostic cultists believed that they would eventually merge with the pantheistic god, i.e. the Universe. However, this was just a trap set by the Old Ones -- the reality behind the blind forces theory. Through their immorality, the Gnostic cultists were becoming like the Old Ones. Writing of the servants of Cthulhu in "The Call Of Cthulhu" H.P.Lovecraft said: "For then mankind would have become as the Great Old Ones; free and wild and beyond good and evil, with laws and morals thrown aside and all men shouting and killing and reveling in joy." The cultists would not become like their god through merger (with the Universe), but, rather through a sort of biological mutation. They would become like the Old Ones and then cleanse the Earth of the unbelievers in "a holocaust of ecstasy and freedom." In this, do we not see a parallel with the "Final Secret" of the Cabala (Issue #7)???

The Genesis Of Political Zionism

by Inquire Within

FROM THE PATRIOT (August 1948)

Writing in 1918 on Le Sionisme Politique et son Fondateur Theodore Herzl, Baruch Hagani says in his introduction: "The first practical applications of the Zionist idea date from 1882. The first Zionist Congress which elaborated the programme and formed definite bases of the organization dates 1897...Theodore Herzl was in Paris as correspondent of the Neue Freie Presse of Vienna when the Dreyfus affair broke out, and understanding the anti-Jewish hatred and the failure of assimilation, he wrote L'Etat Juif."

Under the domination of Herzl's strong personality and his attempt to make Zionism pass from the narrow circle of Jewish life into the domain of international politics, Political Zionism arose.

According to Baruch Hagani: "A work of adaption was made as a prelude to the Revolution (1789). Mendelssohn had proclaimed the accord between the great Jewish tradition and modern thought and the reformed Jews had resolutely deleted from Judaism everything that seemed to them to be incompatible with the needs of the day."

Salluste in "Marxism and Judaism" tells us that: "Mendelssohn founded the 'Hascala' movement, whose purpose is to bring the Jews to the study of Western sciences and to adopt the outward forms of Christian life in order more easily to mix with both and be accepted by them. But this had nothing to do with adherence to the civilisation that has come out of Christianity; the reformed Jews must guard intact the memory of their racial origin, their Hebraic culture, that assures their unity throughout the world, and their hope of their rise as a whole through a Revolution which will give them their (rightful!) place by overthrowing the old Christian world."

Moreover Salluste says: "Through the help of rich Jews such as Friedlander and David Itzig, Mendelssohn founded schools where young Jews, chosen for their intelligence, received instruction which prepared them for the political role that they were destined to play among Christians. As the Jewish Encyclopedia says (Hascala article): 'the extraordinary success that Mendelssohn obtained made it possible to uncover a world of heretofore unheard-of possibilities where initiated Jews could exercise their influence.' These possibilities were above all of a revolutionary and political character. Freemasonry, something new on the continent, enjoyed an extraordinary vogue both in Germany and France, as much from the mystery with which it surrounded itself, as from the pleasures of its work for most of its adepts. Getting to the heart of this association, accentuating its idea which was still but little revolutionary, employing its powers for the furtherance of the interests of Judaism such was the goal that he (Mendelssohn) set for himself..."

Now in a number of La Vieille France, 31 March -6 April, 1921, it was stated that five Jews were concerned in the organization and inspiration of Weishaupt's Illuminati -- Wissely, Moses Mendelssohn, and the bankers, Itzig, Friedlander and Meyer. Further it is interesting to find that the important Illuminatus Mirabeau, under the influence of Mendelssohn's disciples, wrote a book "On Moses Mendelssohn; on the Political Reform of the Jews, 1787." Weishaupt was affiliated to Freemasonry in 1777 and in 1778 decided to link his Order with Freemasonry. Moreover, Le Couteulx de Cantelieu in "Les Sectes et Societes Secretes" (1863), thus explains the corruption of Continental Freemasonry:

"Consorting with the chief disciples of Weishaupt, Mirabeau was initiated in Brunswick into the final Mysteries of Illuminism. Already he knew the value of Masonry in revolution, and on his return to France he introduced these Mysteries among the Philalethes. It was then decided to illuminate all the lodges of France; for this purpose the Illuminatis Bode-Baronde Busche was deputed to assist. After much discussion it was resolved to adopt the Bavarian Mysteries without changing the old forms of the lodges, to illuminate them without revealing the name of the sect from whom the Mysteries were received and only to use Weishaupt's code in so far as it would hasten the revolution."

From then the political aim was accentuated, a new grade was added preserving Masonic emblems and rites, and this was passed on to the provinces. The closest alliance was concluded, and a general Convent of Masons in France and abroad was convoked, by the secret committee, for 15 February, 1785...At this Congress the French Revolution was resolved upon even to the decree of regicide (see "The Trail of the Serpent"). Thus was established the Grand Orient Illuminated Masonry of Europe, a powerful weapon in the hands of these Political Zionists.

In 1880, Weishaupt's Illuminati was re-organised at Dresden by Leopold Engel, under the name of Ordre Renove des Illuminati Germaniae, and played a very suspect political role. Steiner, it is believed, belonged to it, but later. He was a Rosicrucian working a Rosicrucian Masonic grade, as also did the Stella Matutina and R.R. et A.C. (Rosae-Rubeae et Aureae Crusis) [i.e. the Rose of Ruby and the Cross of Gold, a.k.a. the Red Rose and the Golden Cross --the Second Order of the Golden Dawn-Editor] in London which was Continental in origin and later much under the influence of Rudolph Steiner from whom the Chief, Dr. Felkin (see CT #1 -Editor), received "psychic processes leading to Illuminism" and much esoteric instruction. Of the R.R. et A.C., it was said: The last grade, 10-1, is never given on the material plane, but wholly on the astral, the adept is in trance and completely under hypnotic control and from then onwards is merely the oracle and vehicle of these hidden Chiefs. It is Illuminism! Is this not the new grade added, under Weishaupt's code, to hasten the hoped-for revolution leading to World Domination! (see "Light-Bearers of Darkness" p.92). And what is the real aim of Political Zionism in Palestine, that international centre of intrigue for World Power? In an interesting and authoritative article, "Jewish Aims in Palestine," Patriot, 29 August, 1946, A. Homer throws much light on the question. Dr. Homer writes from personal and scientific Knowledge:

"...Long ago I came to the conclusion that Financial Jewry (both Zionist and non-Zionist) was furthering the aims of fanatical Zionism for its own ends, namely, in order to gain possession of the Colossal Oil and Mineral resources of Palestine and Greater Palestine, known to exist in particular in the 'arid regions' stretching south of Hebron to the Gulf of Akaba; and that they would be kept fallow until such time as they could be developed for the aggrandisement of Financial Jewry, preferably under the aegis of the Jewish State...Financial Jewry has undoubtedly supported the aims of Zionists, moderate, political and fanatic, because it seeks the political and economic advantages in the struggle for World Domination which Jewish controlled Palestine would afford."

In his Foreward, Baruch Hagani concludes: "Convinced Zionist, I have, however, guarded myself, as far as possible, from adopting a polemic tone or one of base apology: the facts speak sufficiently for themselves, it is for the readers to draw their own conclusions."

Yet in Baruch Hagani's Introduction to the 1926 edition of Theodore Herzl's "L'Etat Juif" he writes: "The Jewish question exists, says Herzl, it would be puerile to deny it. It exists wherever the Jews live, however small their numbers. Where it does not exist it is imported by Jew immigrants. We naturally go where we are not persecuted, but still persecution is the result of our appearance..."

One, therefore, must ask how much Zionism is simply a Messianic sentiment --"The next year in Jerusalem," at times verging on or becoming an obsession --and how much it is wholly materialistic ambition or pride producing political and economic subversion, aiming at World Domination?

Report From The Readers

FROM GAINESVILLE, FLORIDA

For the last 10 years I have been using a radionic instrument for self-diagnosis and self-healing. In case you are not familiar with these instruments they are simply a means of broadcasting vibratory rates to any person any place in the world. These rates can either cause health or disease depending on what the rate is. I only use my instrument for healing both for myself and my loved ones but unfortunately I know that these instruments are being used for great harm on the U.S. population.

Many years ago the chiropractors used these instruments and were having great success in curing all kinds of ailments until the Federal Food and Drug Administration confiscated all of them. The medical "mafia" didn't want anyone to get well as it would limit the amount of big "bucks" that they were (and are) hauling in. As a result nobody is getting well from anything anymore and modern medicine is pretty much a dismal failure,

The main point of my letter, however, is not about the greed of the medical profession but about what is happening to the population of the U.S. as a result of the wrong use of radionic instruments.

To begin with both my daughter and I have been checking our blood spots in order to determine why we have been having so many health problems. My daughter is a nurse and has tried many doctors over the past 5 or 6 years, but with no help whatsoever, so she was ready to try something different. The results of our research was that we found that we were picking up all kinds of virus, bacteria, poisons, narcotics and radiations.

The narcotics that have been found are the same things that have been used in witchcraft for centuries; namely such things as Henbane and Belladonna. These narcotics are harmful physically and also from the standpoint that they open the pineal gland and thus present a danger of possession.

If, indeed, these things are being broadcast then it is possible to turn whole populations into mindless robots and physical cripples.

Taking this a step further: At the present time it is probable that these frequencies are being sent out on only certain frequencies and thus would affect only a small percentage of the population at a time although it is quite possible that anyone who was influential enough to awaken the sleeping masses would also be individually "zapped". Later on, however, it is my contention that they will place a MARK on every individual in the world and that this mark will actually be a frequency rate which will be stored in a computer and used to control the individual physically, mentally, and spiritually. Thus the rate will actually be used for all economic transactions and for mind control too.

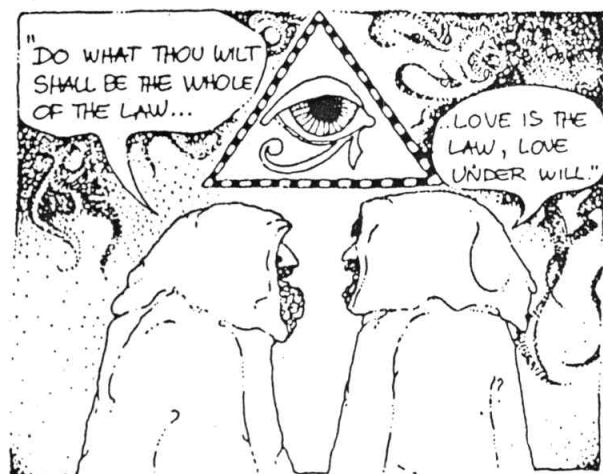

Is it any wonder that the Bible is so adamant about taking the MARK OF THE BEAST????? It would also explain why the Bible states that men will be cutting off their hands in order to rid themselves of this mark. If it were only for economic transactions of buying and selling I doubt if anyone would use such drastic means to get rid of it!

Radionic instruments in themselves are not harmful; in fact they will be the healing instruments of the future and will eliminate a great deal of sickness in the world. However, as long as Satan is the Prince of this World they will be used for the wrong purposes. In fact all those individuals seeking to remain alive during the next few decades should try to get one and learn how to use it as antidotes can be prepared with it to neutralize many of the harmful vibrations now being sent out.

Conspiracy Notes

1. POT AND THE NECRONOMICON. (From the Union Recorder, Sydney, Australia, June 26, 1984) "The conspiracy was conceived, organised and activated by professionals and intellectuals, many of them brilliant and cunning, who decided to put their minds to the service of total evil. In the upper circles of this conspiracy, there is not the slightest trace of noble purpose, or of misguided idealism by which members of the lower echelons are sometimes deceived. ...The purpose of the front founded by Weishaupt was nothing less than to overthrow the Monarchies and the Papacy to preach total liberty, and to create a world republic which it would dominate. The trail of evidence is damning; from Hassan Sabbah's ritual use of hashish to George Washington's Cannabis plantation--a plantation ostensibly for the manufacture of rope, but for which Washington ordered the majority of male plants to be weeded out, despite the fact that the rope fibre from males is no way inferior to the fibre of the female plants; but removal of the males does increase the crop of narcotic female flowers. This narcotic according to the Mad Arab, Abdul Alhazrad, is described in his dreaded Al Azif (the Necronomicon --Editor) as being one of the main ingredients used in an Alchemical process to produce an elixir which, when used in conjunction with the dark rituals described in this book, has the effect of opening the gates of the pit of Hell itself, so that strange outer-dimensional and extra-terrestrial demons can cross the threshold to Earth."

2. BACKWARD MASKING. (From the Union Recorder, same as above.) "...if you play pop records backwards you will find them to be full of Satanic messages of the most unspeakable kind! In fact, this is how Charles Manson (Manson=Mason) was controlled in the carrying out of the Devil's work and the committing of all manner of Satanic Atrocities, including the Ritual Sacrifice and Murder of Sharon Tate and her unborn virgin baby, in accordance with the rites laid down in the Grimoires! His actions were the result of simply listening to albums by "The Beatles", which have been proven to contain messages which become intelligible only when the music is played backwards! Why else was John Lennon shot; he knew too much and had to be silenced!

3. SWIFT. (From the Sydney Morning Herald, February 15, 1984) "The invention of electronic money created the foundation for the role of the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunications (SWIFT). SWIFT links member banks throughout the world to meet international interbank processing and communications requirements. Since its foundation in 1973 SWIFT's membership has expanded rapidly. Today, it envelops 1104 banks (which are also competitors) in 49 countries. According to the Banker, SWIFT expects to have full worldwide membership within five years. Australia joined the society in 1981, and today all banks depend on its services. There has never been anything like SWIFT in the history of banking. Linked to home and office terminals, its potential scope is unparalleled. A program under way to expand its computer network requires all telex and teleprinter interfaces to be phased out. Regional processors located in each member country are connected directly to SWIFT. The Austpac network, which is leased to the banks from Telecom, provides a global data communications link. SWIFT assumes financial liability for all transactions proceeding through its network, which must adhere to set standards and procedures. All transmissions over international lines are encrypted and stored copies are kept for future retrieval. In February, 1982, the society started to move beyond its original mission of interbank transmission services when it concluded a cooperation agreement with Mastercard for the joint processing of international credit card transaction authorisations. Visa's affiliation with Mastercard will bring it to use SWIFT's services. It appears that SWIFT will be the means of transmission for all international business in the future. SWIFT is expanding its services to provide processing of internationally drawn cheques, bank card transactions and traveller's cheques; refund and settlement services; cash management trusts; online data base inquiry; voice and image transmission; and the generation and processing of text. With the world's banks depending on one monolithic organisation for the transborder flow of monetary information, there is the possibility that an outside group could take control and start pulling strings. The average citizen, in turn, would be connected to the system by way of the plastic card. Banks were once strong competitors. Advertising emphasised a happy, helpful staff who were available to assist consumers with any banking need. Today, financial institutions appear to be working towards a common goal. The vision of the future is the cashless, paperless society where money will move instantaneously and invisibly through a central joint operational centre, and consumers will possess one card that will access all financial services. That vision is fast approaching reality."

4. 666 ALL OVER. A friend of ours recently visited New York City. While there his boss had need to visit the offices of Alitalia Airline (a division of Vatican, Incorporated). The address was 666 5th Avenue. Also in the same building were offices for the Rothschilds. Our friend writes: "Visiting 666 5th Avenue was kind of scary. Where you enter this building was a huge glassed-in entry way --maybe 40 feet by 12 feet high. Now this was a huge all glass entry way, and printed on the glass --each sheet of glass, all 14 of them, was, from top to bottom, 666's five across. Let me tell you, that was a vast glass sea of 666. After going into this Rockefeller Square skyscraper --the carpeting has 666 printed all over it --one is completely surrounded by 666!"

5. UFO HYSTERIA. (From New York Post, August 8, 1984) "UFO researchers say sightings of unidentified flying objects in the New York City suburbs and Connecticut have generated a 'UFO hysteria', with more than 1000 people reporting such objects as flying boomerangs and giant V-shaped ships hovering in the sky. Peek-skill attorney Peter Gersten and UFO field investigator Philip Imbrogno said sightings from March 1983 to last month in southwestern Connecticut and in New York's Westchester, Putnam and Dutchess Counties constituted the most frequent multiple viewings on record of UFOs. 'In one case we had 24 calls from people at the same time in different counties,' said Imbrogno, a science teacher who investigates UFOs for the Center for UFO Studies of Evanston Illinois. 'They saw something,' said Gersten. 'its a question of what they saw.' Since last May 31, more than 1000 people responded to Gersten's ad in a local paper asking for reports of UFO sightings. Gersten said many of the UFOs were seen by more than one person at the same time. Those reporting UFOs included police officers and professionals who claim to have seen unidentified flying objects such as V-shaped objects the size of a football field and large boomerang objects. 'There is definitely a hysteria sweeping the three (New York) counties and the Danbury, Conn. area,' Gersten said. The latest sightings were June 11, July 12, 24 and 26. Imbrogno estimated that from June 11 to July 12 close to 7000 people may have seen UFOs in a 1400-square-mile area. 'In the entire history of UFO sightings since 1947, I've never seen a series of sightings of this magnitude,' Imbrogno said. A New Castle, Westchester, police officer, who asked that his name not be used, confirmed that four officers saw a UFO. 'There's something odd up there,' he said. 'Certainly it raises the question that somebody should be looking into it.' Gersten believes that the government is secretly investigating reported UFOs. The Air Force denies it." (Editor's Note: the Westchester area is the area where a number of teen suicides took place earlier this year, to which we attributed ELF wave bombardment as a possiblity. See CT #4.)

6. MARTIAN MYSTERIES. The editor of SECRETS newsletter writes: "Just as the interior of the earth supports life --and in a far better way than the surface, the planet Mars is capable of supporting life as well if not on the exterior, certainly within the interior which, like that of Earth, is a huge cavernous hole lighted by something akin to the sun. Streaming out upon the ~~sm~~ surface at the pole, this illumination within the planet is plainly visible when viewed through a telescope of sufficient magnitude. The etchings and erosion of the pitted terrain can only mean that once rain fell heavily on the red planet. Copious rainfall has a way of carving out beds for streams of water to flow upon. Rain means clouds, and clouds mean atmosphere. Considering the possibility of other life supporting elements as well, the suspicion that life once existed, perhaps abundantly, on the face of Mars becomes something of a conviction. In the last century astronomers were piqued and puzzled by the strange markings observed on the disk. Because of the way they were laid out, the suspicion was that they were canals built under the supervision of a super intelligence bent on feeding moisture systematically into a terrain grown barren due to a deficiency of rainfall. In 1900, Percival Lowell, at the famous observatory near Flagstaff, Arizona, watched spell-bound as an intense pulsating light leaped out from the surface of Mars. Flashing on and off, this inexplicable mystery continued its performance for 70 minutes! This was not a rare incident, for other astronomers, both professional and amateur, have repeatedly seen lights on Mars, a mystery that remains unsolved. In 1927, strange radio signals were received by radio stations all around the world when Mars made its closest approach to Earth. At that time rare 'radio pictures' were taken that showed a human head plainly formed in a raised platform of the planet's terrain. And of course, there are the coveted NASA photos which show pyramids on the surface of the planet...Well defined and of enormous size, some of the pyramids measure over three miles at the base and are over 4800 feet tall! While the mysteries of Mars are endless, such as the traveling lights observed passing through the field of the telescope, none is as confounding as the moons of Mars. Dubbed Deimos and Phobos, the satellites are believed not to be of natural origin. With peculiarities that are inexplicable, even their color - a neutral gray - is unnatural. Another strange thing about the Moons is that they weren't discovered until 1877, although Mars had been observed through powerful telescopes since the 1700's. Deimos, the farthest from the planet, takes 30 hours, 18 minutes to circle Mars, while Phobos takes only 7 hours, 30 minutes. This erratic orbiting is the kind a hollow object. All of this strengthens the belief by some men of science that not only are the moons artificially made but that they are hollow as well..."
